First in a series of machine accounting programs to be sponsored by the University of Dayton's community service center will get under way when a special "Punched Card and Tape Accounting" course begins on the campus Apr. 24.

Designed for business personnel who wish to increase their understanding of basic machine accounting equipment and cost-saving applications in selected accounting areas, the program will consist of six 2½ hour sessions on Thursday evenings.

Directing the program will be Byron "Mike" Weller, general supervisor of tabulating and data processing at Delco; James T. Thompson, systems analysis and customer assistance manager of the Dayton office of IEM, and James Keily, manager of methods and procedures of the Dayton office of Remington Rand.
